

CONTENTS

Preface xi

1 Introduction: Definition, Brief History, and Taxonomy of Individual Differences 1

Definition 4

Brief History of Individual Difference Research 5

Individual Differences in Second Language Studies 6

Taxonomy of Individual Differences and the Structure of this Book 7

2 Personality, Temperament, and Mood 10

Definitions 11

Different Approaches to the Study of Personality 12

Personality and Learning 20

Personality and Language Learning and Use 24

Conclusion 29

3 Language Aptitude 31

Basic Conceptual Issues 32

Language Aptitude Research: From the Beginnings to the 1990s 34

Traditional Issues in Language Aptitude Research 43

New Research Directions and Perspectives 50

Conclusion 63

4 Motivation and ‘Self-Motivation’ 65

- Three Phases of L2 Motivation Research 66
- New Conceptual Issues 88
- Reframing L2 Motivation as Part of the Self-System 93
- L2 Motivation and SLA Research 109
- Educational Implications: Devising Motivational Strategies 111
- Conclusion 118

5 Learning Styles and Cognitive Styles 120

- What Are Learning Styles? 121
- Cognitive Styles 125
- Kolb’s Model of Learning Styles 129
- Assessing Cognitive and Learning Styles 131
- Cognitive and Learning Styles in L2 Studies 136
- Practical Implications 155
- Conclusion 160

6 Language Learning Strategies and Student Self-Regulation 162

- Do Learning Strategies Exist? 163
- Learning Strategies in L2 Studies 166
- Learning Strategies and Student Self-Regulation in Educational Psychology 188
- Conclusion 195

7 Other Learner Characteristics 197

- Anxiety 198
- Creativity 202
- Willingness to Communicate 207
- Self-Esteem 211
- Learner Beliefs 214

8 Conclusion 218

References 221

Definition Index (Glossary) 253

Author Index 257

Subject Index 264